

With several inches of root regrowth and an old mousey brown color, Vickie was ready to try something new. Stylist and makeup artist Gerine Coronado of Salon 56 in San Diego, California first applied soft golden highlights to leave a beachy blonde impression. Next she cut layers through the front to give Vickie's hair movement and added shattered bits around her face for a wispy feel.

A dime-size amount of Moroccan Oil was worked through her damp strands to help smooth the cuticle and then Unite Root Energizer was sprayed in at the base in the crown area. Gerine blew the hair dry using a round brush for volume and then applied a dab of Unite Wicked Wax Piecing Pomade to her fingers and pieced through the hair to finish.
